

LIST OF SCOTTISH MOUNTAINS 2,500 FEET
AND UNDER 3,000 FEET IN HEIGHT

By J. Rooke Corbett.

Foreword

By John Dow.

AFTER ascending all Munros and "tops," Corbett embarked on the task of visiting all the Scottish hills from 2,500 to 2,999 feet, which involved the compilation of "Corbett's Tables" as well as the work on the ground.

When the state of his health put a final end to his long series of journeys north he had not finished the job. He did, however, make out a list which was forwarded after his death to the Guide Book Editor, who has judged that, while incomplete, its publication in the Journal would be justified; and with this the Journal Editor is in agreement.

The list of 219 hills is reproduced without addition or deletion, the only amendments made being in the column headed "Position" where distances have in certain cases been reduced by reference to neighbouring Munros or easily identifiable road points. It does not differentiate between "Corbetts" and "tops"; and reference to the maps—e.g., 1-in. Ordnance Sheets 42, 43, 49, etc.—makes it clear that numerous heights of equal "merit" to those listed have not been shown. Many of the hills noted, however, are equally inviting and attractive with most of the Munros; and it is hoped that the list may be of interest to "Salvationist" members at any rate. The Sections are as in Munro's Tables—see General Guide Supplement, page vii.

Corbett was probably the best and most tireless hill walker of his generation, and love of the Scottish mountains was with him a passion pure and abiding. Let his list, therefore, be accepted as a memorial to a personality genuine and likeable, rather than as an authoritative document: and may it serve as a stimulus and a plan of campaign to those who have already ascended all the Munros (with or without the "tops") in any district.

Thus may our friendly Scottish hills, out of their inexhaustible riches, give to those who love them new pictures of beauty, and days when it is more happy to journey than to arrive; and perhaps, at some later date, we may see a revised Edition, comprehensive of every 2,500-foot summit. There might even be compiled a Supplement containing such hills below that arbitrary limit as are of outstanding interest for their form, their excellence as viewpoints, or their rock-climbing interest.

FREEDOM OF THE HILLS.

MINE is the freedom of the tranquil hills
 When vagrant breezes bend the sinewy grass,
 While sunshine on the widespread landscape spills
 And light as down the fleet cloud shadows pass.

Mine, still, that freedom when the storm-clouds race,
 Cracking their whips against defiant crags,
 And mists swirl boiling up from inky space
 To vanish on the instant, torn to rags.

When winter grips the mountains in a vice,
 Silently stifling with its pall of snow,
 Checking the streams, draping the rocks in ice,
 Still to their mantled summits I would go.

Sun-drenched, I sense the peace the hills impart;
 Storm-lashed, I hear it singing in my heart.
